

Chicken, chips, beans, ice cream and orange juice . . . a wasp or two here and there . . . but nothing to deter the obvious enjoyment for rider Jenny Dalton-White.

Lunch time and an eager line of riders waiting at the self service counter. Chef (at the back) was Mrs. Anne Paton of High Roding who delighted the youngsters with an exciting menu.

The water fight to outdo the thunderstorm earlier in the week. Pony Camps always end with a water battle and instructor Penny Tomblin dressed for the part. The sausage grilling party in the background seem to view the battle with mixed feelings.

And so to bed on the final evening . . . tired boys receive cocon and biscuits from instructor Sue Dyson.
